I am a CS user who has also utilized Photoshop Elements, Photoshop Soundtrack, and Photoshop Mix. Lightroom is the flagship product of the company that also makes the Photoshop suite. The new application, based on the open-source graphics program Gimp, is built with touch, enjoyable to use, and easy to learn. Gimp is an open source graphics software toolkit nearly identical in function to the popular Photoshop, without the millions of dollars (that some would say) that Adobe splurges on marketing and development. Elated Gimp users frequently remark that "If Photoshop was free as Gimp, that would be my Photoshop."
